Policy on the use of Word Processors in Public Examinations

September 2023

Responsibility for updating this policy: Head of Learning Development

1 Aims

The aim of this policy is to provide guidelines on the use of a word processor in examinations in line with the regulations set out by JCQ and the IB.

2 Scope

2.1 The guidelines to all students regardless of Special Educational need. Not all Special Educational needs will justify use of a word processor in exams.

2.1.1 Staff, parents and students should be aware of the policy.

3 Guidelines for use of word processor in examinations

3.1 The use of a word processor must reflect the student's normal way of working at school and must be appropriate for their needs. The use of a word processor will not be granted to a student because he/she prefers to type rather than write or because he/she can work faster on a keyboard or because he/she uses a laptop at home.

3.2 Conditions under which word-processing may be allowed.

- The student has a Specific Learning Difficulty which has a substantial and long term adverse effect on their ability to write legibly or fluently.
- Formal assessment has shown the student to have a below average speed of handwriting.
- Formal assessment has indicated that a student has illegible handwriting (i.e. 10% or more words are illegible in context) and teachers judge this to be significantly impacting on his/her performance in assessed work.
- A student has a medical condition or physical disability which impacts on his/her ability to write by hand. [Here evidence will be required from a relevant medical professional].

*NB the above list is not exhaustive.

In all cases the use of a word processor must be the student's normal way of working prior to the exam series in question.

3.3 Regulations on the use of word processors.

When a word processor is used in any internal/public examination in accordance with this policy, the grammar and spell check facility and any predictive text facility must be disabled unless the student has also been granted the use of a scribe/spell check in accordance with JCQ and IB regulations.

Any student wishing to use a word processor in public examinations must consult with the Head of Learning Development at the start of their examination course to confirm that they qualify to do so. Such students will be required to attend a session with the Learning Development Department or the Examinations Office to ensure that they understand how to use the word processor efficiently in an examination.

The use of word processors in controlled assessment or coursework components, will be considered standard practice unless prohibited by the specification.
